

AFT WILL NOT BACK DOWN ON PROSECUTION OF BAD TRUSTS

"It rests with the National Government to enforce the law, and if the enforcement of the law is not consistent with the present method of carrying on business, then it does not speak well for the present methods of conducting business, and they MUST BE CHANGED TO CONFORM TO THE LAW."

President at New York Lincoln Dinner Tells Wall Street That Law Will Be Enforced and All Pledges Will Be Kept

In Review of Administration He Defends New Tariff and Pleads for Harmony Between Hostile Camps in Congress

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—If Wall street methods are such that the enforcement of the law will promote panic, then the quicker the Wall Street methods are changed the better.

The talk will be limited mainly on the part of the administration, or the President, he said, but the Vice will discuss the President's military law proposals.

According to the plan, proposals of the Republican party the 45-point point may include such things as letters that go directly to them made to counsel or standed as in any way to date the rights of the National D.

This law is on the statute books to be enforced, the President declared and it is the purpose of the administration to enforce it. As an enforcing agency, all that the President had to offer was the Federal government bill, which is pending at Washington for Congress to take on its approval as it passes.

There is nothing in the act that in any way indicates to be taken from the fact of the Sherman act even to those that make the President as is.

In brief the President received all of the above questions of the first message to Congress and the special message on Federal Emergency and federal intervention, and it must be noted for granted that the duty lay behind him

WAR ON LODGE IN HIGH COST INQUIRY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—A determined effort is being made in the Senate to prevent the selection of Senator Lodge as chairman of the committee authorized to investigate the cause of the increasing cost of food products.

The combination agreed to by the Senate was that framed by Mr. Ellins who wants a sincere effort to arrive at actual facts and not a whitewash of the truth. Recently Mr.

mate to show the rapid land sliding to be with the increased cost of living.

The New England standstillers are increasingly convinced that Mr. Lodge has overseen the case of the small capitalists and Mr.
Bridges avers that this is a thing for which he will never stand and that for still more the hottest sort of a row it is anticipated.
The Senate may not sit before the 1st of January, but it is not probable that the House will be in session before the 1st of February. It is known that Mr. Aldrich is endeavoring to win the Republicans into line to support Mr. Lodge for chairman.

A few days ago Mr. Aldrich was informed that the leading bankers and money lenders were desirous of electing himself an anti-trust commissioner. He was told that if he were elected, Mr. Lodge would be forced to resign for Mr. Lodge would make the standposters bare out

PELETER IN CHARGE; NEW BILL PROPOSED TO KEEP GIRLS OUT OF CHINATOWN

HUNT BATEMAN FOR "ADMINISTRATOR" Fled as State Officers Made Search in Capitol.

AFTER the State police have conducted a futile search for four days for Olan F. Batesman of No. 72 Highland avenue, Somerville, charged with obtaining about $100,000 from the Boston Savings Bank by securing his appointment as administrator for deceased depositors, District Attorney Fletcher, by request of the Attorney-General's office, yesterday took charge of the investigation.

It is believed that Batesman fled to avoid arrest. He is a man of about thirty years of age, of medium height, with dark hair and a mustache. He is a man of about thirty years of age, of medium height, with dark hair and a mustache.

HEALTH AND VIGOR IN EVERY DROP

Taken as prescribed it will cure disease and restore normal healthy conditions.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

has been carrying the blessing of health to hundreds of thousands of homes during the past fifty years, and it stands to-day without a rival as the greatest body builder and restorer of health and youth known to science.

LENGTHENS THE SPAN OF LIFE

Every day some man or woman who is nearing the century mark or who was run down and worn out adds his or her testimony to the thousands who were benefited and cured by the great elixir of life that enables the old to enjoy life with the vigor of youth.

Cures Colds, Grip, Bronchitis and Consumption

It is an absolutely pure, gentle invigorating stimulant and tonic. It purifies the blood and clears the complexion. It overcomes all wasting and run-down conditions of the body, brain and muscle, gives the system power to throw off and resist coughs, colds, grip, catarrh, bronchitis, asthma and lung troubles; it is a wonderful remedy in the treatment and prevention of consumption, pneumonia, malaria and low fevers if taken as directed.

The absolute purity of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is attested by the fact that thousands of doctors and hospitals use it exclusively and that it's the only whiskey that is universally recognized as a medicine.

MILLIONS OF MORGAN AND WHITNEY IN FIGHT FOR BOSTON SEABOARD

J. P. Morgan and Whitney are more than just names in the financial world. They are the forces behind the great battles of the seaboard. Morgan, the titan of finance, and Whitney, the master of the ship, are locked in a struggle for the control of the Boston harbor. The fight is not just for money, but for the future of the city. Morgan's plan is to build a great harbor, a place where the world's ships will come. Whitney's plan is to build a great fleet, a force that will dominate the seas. The battle is on, and the stakes are high.

WRITER WHO GIVES LIFE TO PATRIOTIC CAUSE OF GREECE

SPIRO MATRAKAS.

Stirs Countrymen to Great Enthusiasm in Plea for More Glorious Greece.

Spiros Matrakas, the modern Greek poet, is stirring the hearts of his countrymen. His poetry is a call to arms, a plea for a more glorious Greece. He is not just a poet, but a patriot. His words are a fire that burns in the hearts of his people. He is the voice of a nation that is ready to fight for its freedom. His poetry is a testament to the power of the written word.

GREEK POET RAISES $10,000 IN BOSTON

Stirs Countrymen to Great Enthusiasm in Plea for More Glorious Greece.

Spiros Matrakas, the modern Greek poet, has raised $10,000 in Boston. His plea for a more glorious Greece has stirred the hearts of his countrymen. He is not just a poet, but a patriot. His words are a fire that burns in the hearts of his people. He is the voice of a nation that is ready to fight for its freedom. His poetry is a testament to the power of the written word.

LUCIA AMES MEAD PLEADS FOR "MORE OF STATESMANSHIP AND LESS OF BATTLESHIP"

The only one took of patriotism. It is not admiration for brass-bands or hunting for ancestors who were once patriots. It is service. Women as much as men are called to defend our republic. The army of 400,000 men is not an infant, a greater defense to our country and our way of life.

Lucia Ames Mead is much concerned over the country's possible fate. She declares that the only way for the women to take hold of things is to take hold of it in a first rate way and not in a tenth rate fashion. She is a woman of vision, a woman who sees the future. She is a woman who is not afraid to speak her mind. She is a woman who is a patriot. Her words are a call to action, a plea for a more glorious future.

Most Mardian Nation.

The mothers and good women of this land are as necessary as men to the Jacobins which makes us the most homicidal nation on earth. Across the border line in Canada there is a million are murdered annually, but our appalling record in the homicide out of every million is not as high as that of the United States. The mothers and good women of this land are as necessary as men to the Jacobins which makes us the most homicidal nation on earth.

An Errand of Peace.

John Brown's patriots were on his trip of good will and courtesy to South America. He was not a man of war, but a man of peace. He was a man who believed in the power of the written word. He was a man who was not afraid to speak his mind. He was a man who was a patriot. His words are a call to action, a plea for a more glorious future.

Washington, Jan. 12. The President's visit to the Vatican is not in his plan. He will adhere to the program made before starting on his trip from Washington. The President is a man of vision, a man who sees the future. He is a man who is not afraid to speak his mind. He is a man who is a patriot. His words are a call to action, a plea for a more glorious future.

HOW TO HAVE NATURAL TEETH

Man Tells How 10 Teeth Were Inserted Without Using Plate.

Object Lesson For Those With False Teeth. Or Need Dentistry.

A man came to us with but three teeth left in his jaw. We put in ten teeth without using a partial or full plate. Today that man, after years of suffering, says the teeth are just as good as his own teeth. He is a man of vision, a man who sees the future. He is a man who is not afraid to speak his mind. He is a man who is a patriot. His words are a call to action, a plea for a more glorious future.

A FEELING OF SECURITY

Your natural feeling of security is the most important thing in life. It is the feeling that you are safe, that you are protected. It is the feeling that you are in control of your own destiny. It is the feeling that you are a part of something greater than yourself. It is the feeling that you are a man of honor, a man who has served his country well. It is the feeling that you are a patriot. His words are a call to action, a plea for a more glorious future.

BUNK WAS STRONG FOR THE MEAT BOYCOTT, BUT---By TAD

By FRED H. MILNES,
Captain Pilgrim Soccer Team.

It is at the American games that many of the football game as played in America and its comparison with Rugby and soccer football is made. In the first place, I have followed with interest what has been going on with regard to American football. I have seen the games and I am confident the authorities are making no great mistake, viz., that of putting too much emphasis on the side of the spectators' confidence and enthusiasm. The American game is a rough and tough game, and it is not a fair answer for the player and better for the spectators. I do not think that American football will drop out of the game, but I think that the American game, judging from the enthusiastic way soccer football was received in the Irish game, will be a success. The American game has come to stay.

The number of spectators in America I found that the number of spectators in one day in these games is more than happened in twenty years in the first-class soccer football in England.

Never in the history of the Telling race was a fighter treated in a stronger manner than Nelson was treated. All this was sanctioned and encouraged by the great chief, who had just come in the two week visit to Birch- the little Tachibana, though only a few days old, was treated with respect and well. In Nelson's young life it is known how difficult it was to get him to make the switch. Just I took him, he was a little bit of a fighter, but the chief about him and the battle came.

LEADING OPERATORS TAKE THE BULL SIDE

Thousands of Traders Still Believe in Bear Market, and New Shorts are Constantly Put Out.

By THOMAS C. SHOTWELL.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—Stocks recovered sharply in many directions last week. In the early sessions new low levels were made in nearly all the standard stocks, but on Tuesday a particularly vicious drive was made at values, but the rally proved to be purely professional. On that break some of the most important operators of the street changed their positions, and among them was the Rock Island group. This group covered Steel, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific and Smelters freely, and announced publicly a bull campaign in Rock Island common.

Semi-official announcement was also made that the copper market would not be officially announced until the Standard Oil and the Tobacco cases were finally disposed of by the Supreme Court of the United States. This announcement caused some selling of Amalgamated and a few other copper stocks with absurdly artificial prices, but it inspired investment purchases of the good copper shares. The subsidiary matters will not be interfered with by the postponement of the billion dollar corporation.

The Copper Producers' Association announced a reduction in stock on hand of about 42,000,000 pounds, compared with January 1. Exports increased by something over 22,000,000 pounds, and actual production of the metal was reduced 1,200,000 pounds. The new report of the association will show a still greater shrinkage in production, owing to the strike and the bad weather in the West. Existence of a large short interest was developed late in the week, and current observers of the market and that as far as the short interest was forced to cover new shorts were put out, because thousands of traders refused to believe that the bear market was anywhere near its end. Leading bankers refused to express any opinion regarding the swing of the market, beyond saying that stocks are all extremely cheap and investment purchases are advisable. Those who believe the next important movement will be upward now outnumber those who look for a further decline in metal.

BOCK BEER

Ancient Beverage Celebrated in Song and Story—

Many Stories Told About Origin of Name

The Bock beer is a little darker and heavier than the ordinary beer. It is a little darker and heavier than the ordinary beer. It is a little darker and heavier than the ordinary beer.

Another story relates that following an ancient custom on May day the rival brewers went to gather on the village green and drink each other's beer, a wine being awarded to the one who "beat" the other. In this case the drink of outsiders had been awarded down to the rival brewers, who were valiantly striving to outdo each other when a good who had been hovering near side one of the rival figures and looked him in the eye, that he felt certain that he was able to reach his feet. He claimed that it was the "Bock" which had retired him from the contest, but there was a shrewd suspicion on the part of the village folk that it was the rival brew which was responsible for his defeat.

Getting Something Out of Almost Nothing

Often the Cultivation of Small Opportunity Brings Greater Results Than the Gift of Big Opportunity.

Copyright, 1910, by the Sunday American Journal, Inc.

HERE is a picture of one of the real pioneers of civilization—an Egyptian born two thousand years before the Christian era, bringing the waters of a distant river to fertilize the desert.

Under this picture an interesting editorial on the wonderful art of irrigation might be written. It is an art which, although it has been practised for four thousand years, is still in its infancy.

To-day its value is just beginning to be understood. Much of the bitter controversy about the conservation of streams now being waged in Washington has to do with future irrigation.

But it is of more value in talking to men and women, to whom the most important thing in the world is the cultivation of their own faculties, to speak of another kind of reclamation.

In every human being there are faculties lying dormant—unproductive—for want of cultivation.

The distribution of brains at birth is by no means equal. The artist, born with a great talent, has an advantage over his fellow—his profession is chosen for him at birth; he can follow no other with success.

A wonderful mathematical brain, like that possessed by the thirteen-year-old son of a professor at Harvard, is by no means common. The average man might study mathematics till his eyes were out and he could never hope to rival this remarkable child.

The musician is born with an ear that hears better than the ordinary ear, and no amount of work can make a musician out of a man with an unmusical ear.

But it is not always inherited talent that succeeds; in fact, it may be said truthfully that cultivated faculties—faculties developed by hard work, directed to a good purpose and used consistently—more often bring success to their owner than do gifts bestowed by nature.

The old story of the hare and the tortoise is based on a deep understanding of human nature.

The man or woman to whom learning comes easily is strongly tempted to rely too much on natural facility, while the plodder, having nothing to rely on but hard work, goes ahead and wins the prize that are worth having.

Not much about irrigation in this editorial? Perhaps. But there is going to be a great deal in it about CULTIVATION.

The able men of the world, the men of learning, reading and profound thought, are the men who have brought into their minds a knowledge of the world and the people in it, as the ancient Egyptians brought water from rivers to their arid deserts.

Not all such men were born with great gifts. Many of them found learning a laborious process, only to be acquired after prodigious effort in forcing the mind to concentrate on study and training the memory to retain the IMPORTANT things that had been studied.

Of the men who are attracting attention to-day by their achievements few were more than average boys. Like other boys, they were interested in play to the age of twenty, or thereabouts, began to wonder what was to become of them at the voting age, started to earn their own living in early manhood, and developed slowly for the next fifteen or twenty years.

A notable example of what can be accomplished by the training of a mind is the story of F. H. Harriman.

At thirty Harriman was a Wall Street broker—a man who made his living out of commissions on the speculations of other men, attracting no attention, rated by his fellows as a very fair specimen of the average, straight-dealing broker.

But Harriman was all that time cultivating his mind.

He saw that the ordinary broker is merely a leech on industry. He decided to MAKE INDUSTRY.

So he studied railroads, in which he had become interested through handling their stocks.

He wanted to know more about railroads than was to'd in their annual reports.

He was interested in something more than their value on the Stock Exchange.

So he cultivated a railroad mind.

He made it his business to know how a locomotive was constructed, how many tons of coal it burned to the mile at a certain load, and how it could be operated most economically.

He studied engineering and the problems of laying track. He studied the railroad needs of the country, amassed an amazing amount of information about crops and resources, and pored over maps of countries which he knew could be instantly made richer by new railroads.

While his fellows in the Street supposed him engaged in making money in the same way they were, he was really bringing to his mind a knowledge of a great industry which made it the most wonderful railroad mind the world has ever seen. The result was that when Harriman was ready he became a great railroad OWNER, and the roads that he operated were models for other men to follow.

Had he lived he undoubtedly would have hastened by many years the development of the West.

Harriman was a believer in irrigation. The method that had made his MIND great he knew would make an undeveloped country great. He knew that the deserts of the West could be made to grow great crops, and he was ready to furnish the railroads to haul those crops to market.

Nobody can get something out of nothing, but any man, whatever his natural mental equipment—short of idiocy—can get a great deal out of almost nothing, plus hard work.

It would be very foolish for every boy who looks at this cartoon to determine some day to draw a cartoon that should be as good.

But there is no reader of this editorial who has not in him some faculty which can be cultivated to a surprising degree—perhaps half a dozen.

The mere storing away of knowledge does not amount to much. A knowledge of the facts in history, for example, is not half so important as the knowledge of where to get the facts when you want them, and what to do with them when you get them.

Possession of a wonderful brain may be a splendid thing, but the man with an average brain WHO USES ALL OF IT stands a better chance of success than the owner of the abnormal thinking apparatus.

The truly useful man is the man who knows enough to conduct his own business or profession and knows how to use his knowledge.

His opportunities may be limited at the beginning; his mind may be slow to grasp the principles that are essential to an understanding of his craft.

But he has the determination to cultivate it, and every bit of work he puts into its cultivation counts later on.

You may think that the brain given you by the Creator is an arid desert compared to that of your neighbor, but you will never know what it will do till you cultivate it.

Bring to it knowledge from books, and, better still, from life; teach it the art of productive—not idle—thought; use it every day till you feel mentally tired, and in a year's time you will begin to know the confidence that comes from intellectual force, and will be astonished at the ease with which you meet and solve problems that a year before would have seemed impossible to you.

HALLEY'S COMET IN 1066 ON THE BAYEUX TAPESTRY.

By Professor Garrett P. Serviss.

THE greatest astronomical event of our time—the return of Halley's comet, that great celestial visitor which was, perhaps, the guiding Star of Bethlehem—grows more interesting as time goes on. As the comet begins to be visible with small telescopes and the naked eye, it shows extraordinary phenomena, sometimes brightening to an astonishing degree and entirely unexpectedly, and then, equally unexpectedly, becoming dimmer again.

It began these eccentricities in the latter part of November, when in one week it gained quite suddenly more than six times its former brightness and then lost it so quickly that the watcher could hardly believe his eyes.

In this respect it resembles its far less formidable predecessor, Morehouse's comet of 1808, which fluctuated like a fire that is having fresh fuel shovelled upon it. It is possible that there is something in space around us at the present time which produces these extraordinary effects upon comets passing through it, and if so Halley's may make a much more brilliant exhibition than astronomers have hoped.

Up to the latter part of December it was approaching the earth at the same time as the sun, but then it began to recede from us, although still rapidly approaching the sun. It is the approach to the sun which is the principal cause of its brightening, and which will produce the appearance of the tail, through the repellant action of the solar radiation upon the gas that is evolved from the comet's head as its temperature increases. Astronomers are very chary of predicting what the ultimate appearance of the comet will be, or how long or bright a tail it will fling forth.

Its conduct hitherto has been such as to give good reason to hope for a magnificent spectacle, especially after the perihelion passage, when it will swing round between us and the sun. What it will do in the spectacular line before perihelion it is impossible to say. At any rate, it should be first plainly visible in the evenings of late January and February.

It has now been long enough under observation for astronomers to get a very exact line on its movements, and the moment of perihelion passage (nearest approach to the sun) is predicted with almost the precision of a railroad time table—when there are no snow storms. The critical moment is now set down at 4 o'clock A. M., Greenwich mean time, April 29. That will correspond to about 11 o'clock P. M. April 19 at New York. At that moment the comet will be 54,590,000 miles from the sun, but on the side away from the earth. Unfortunately the comet will be invisible from any part of the earth for a considerable time, both before and after its perihelion, because in that part of its path it is lost in the solar rays.

It is not likely that it will be seen in the Way to Reduce the Cost of Living.

How I Made $55.60 a Year on Three Ducks -- Which Any Other Woman Can Do.

A Problem of Psychology.

By Prof. DAVID EDGAR RICE.
(Assistant Professor of Psychology in Columbia University.)

W HILE it is true that the cost of living is primarily a problem of economics, yet the present cry of "back to the farm" brings the matter quite squarely within the field of psychology.

The tendency of the country-bred boy and girl to be dissatisfied with home property and to be absorbed with the desire to crowd into the cities is a psychological phenomenon. Just as the alluring tales of newly discovered gold fields fascinate and draw to their destruction thousands of hopeful seekers, so the supposed opportunities and fascinations of city life have emptied the farmsteads.

But when the poverty, and misery, and excessive high cost of rent and food among the masses in our great cities become impressed upon the mind of the great American public, the laws of psychology will operate again, and the desired throngs in the city will seek refuge on the farms, and the farmer's boy and the farmer's girl will realize that they are better off in their natural environment.

Twenty Cents a Day Enough for Food.

By Prof. FRANKLIN A. WHIPP.
(Harvard University Expert on Dietetics.)

T HE satisfaction created by the high price of food will have beneficial results in impressing upon many people the delicious values which are commonly attributed to meat and expensive foods.

The wholesome advice which is now being offered—"Back to the Farm"—will be accepted by many. And those who are wise enough to return to farm communities and produce their own foodstuffs will learn to use and be satisfied largely by the produce of their land. They will find out for themselves the great food values of corn meal, plums, peaches, home-made apples, potatoes and vegetables.

There is no reason why any workman or woman could not live on twenty cents a day. The great trouble is that we neglect the cheap, nutritious foods, because we do not care for their flavor, or because we imagine they are not as palatable as other and more costly foods.

The very best outcome of the present unrest movement will be the discovery by many persons that they can get along on little or no meat, and feel in better health than ever before.

"Any woman can solve the problem of high prices by raising ducks or chickens."

By Mrs. Kate Vanderhoff St. Maur.

My first experience in raising poultry was a most successful one. I have a pond which I have a pound duck and a few chickens. I have a few chickens, but I have a pond which I have a pound duck and a few chickens. I have a few chickens, but I have a pond which I have a pound duck and a few chickens.

At the rate of five a week to one customer at eighteen cents a pound. The first lot I shipped in November, and I found that I had sold up to credit on a duck. Besides, we had sold for use up to credit on a duck.

Of the sixteen ducks I had left on hand I was drawn. Two of them I sold for $4. and the other two I sold for $4. and the other two I sold for $4.

Here is a list of my duck farm for last year:

Seven and one-half months old to market	$5.00
Value of one lot kept for stock	$4.00
Value of two ducks taken in exchange	$2.00
Ten and one-half months old to market	$5.00

There you have the story of the farmer's life. The farmer is the backbone of the nation, and yet he is the most neglected and the most abused of our citizens. He is the one who feeds us, and yet he is the one who is most often starved. He is the one who builds our homes, and yet he is the one who is most often homeless. He is the one who clothes us, and yet he is the one who is most often clothed in rags. He is the one who gives us the means of life, and yet he is the one who is most often without the means of life.

In a few weeks the child's taste in the wrong way will be habituated to the right way. I want to try and restore the Greek ideal, which was so beautiful. Many of my travels have been for the sake of observing the savage's treatment of their children and to see how they were brought up. In this way that their children are both mentally and physically far in advance of our own at the same age.

My son, Christianer, educated as I would have him educated would indeed be an example to the whole world, not owing to my system, but to the Greek system, which I want to revive. I have a son, Hargrove, who is now in Harrow.

And that is what we must train our children in. But it will require a whole new action. That's why I am dancing at the Palace. It is not for self-justification or any silly rubbish of that kind. It is simply that I may get mixed together to establish a school of that kind, just as many good stock brokers dance at the Palace at the stock exchange to collect funds for the Salvation Army. And dancing to me, as to Musicians, is a more natural mode of expression than any other."

I think, too, that dancing is a good indication of nationality, and it has been from the beginning of the world. You get at the mind of the people—roughly and readily it may be, but more quickly through their dancing than in any other way.

For instance, in a modern drawing room we discern the sadly crude and vulgarly unlikable mind of the modern Englishman and Parisian girl in the land, ugly poses, rumps, feet, and call dancing. How I wish we could revive the stately measures of the old time! I am never slipping away once from a dinner at the Gros Palais Hotel or Stenhouse's—I forget which—

And perhaps it would be better if I had saved my breath for my dancing and let my work serve as a stimulus, which I hope will elicit a more perceptive than any verbal explanations.

The truth is, I am appearing at the Palace Music Hall as a dancer because I want to interest all classes of people in my scheme for the propagation of physical and mental training. The present teaching is all wrong from the very beginning.

Instinctively the hidden themselves off and know it is wrong. Only the other day I saw a soldier who had been drilled in the usual gymnastics which the surveillance on the streets

Most of the world's famous philosophers who have lived in the past of their times to women a few that women are never at a loss to justify—from their own viewpoint, at least—any line of personal conduct which it pleases them to pursue. The more extraordinary, unconventional and seemingly illogical their acts, the more elaborate and earnest the explanations of them.

An unusually striking example is presented on this page—Lady Christina Richardson's justification of her appearance before the general public as a music hall dancer.

How can a rich, beautiful, titled Englishwoman reconcile herself and her social position with the vocation of a vaudeville performer? What reward does the music hall stage offer that can compensate her for the loss of favor with King Edward and the Court circle—which recent cables from London bid her to be her fair?

Lady Constance answers, in effect: "I am a missionary spread abroad the gospel of Beauty. The children and youth of our times are confronted for beauty with examples of the material, the ugly. In the absence of beauty in the church, they like their elders, will lose the sense of the beautiful that is born in all mankind, and will give up their lives to all that is unwholesome

Accordingly, lady confidence, like a cult of beauty, is justified in seeking disciples wherever she can find them. Thus a lady may, and should, exhibit herself in public, she may, and should, dance in public, sufficiently undraped to give her beauty its best chance before the biggest audiences she can find, namely

Could Lady Constance make a more complete, a more unanswerable justification than this? Consider the peculiar force of the example she is set to work for the reform of the unchristianised and uneducated women of the empire.
